Guest Speaker
Pegi Burdick
The Financial Stress Coach

Pegi Burdick has made a very successful career out of understanding individuals and small business owners. She has built several million-dollar businesses including a restaurant in New York City, a construction company in Los Angeles, and a mortgage brokerage company in Los Angeles.

All too often we miss the hidden connection between our money and our feelings.

Pegi Burdick will explain how and why we have financial stress, and how to get rid of it. Dealing with money is a constant but how we manage our money speaks volumes about our inner world and our self-esteem.

Her approach is simple, strategic, and the insight gained is able to be applied to your life with velocity. Through her personal journey from financial ruin to recovery, Pegi has become an expert in teaching women how to separate their emotions from their money. Her motto, “you need to live it to teach it” is the organic basis for the sometimes unexpected methodology employed to guide people from financial chaos to self-respect and control.

Learn simple and effective tips and tools that help women learn to recognize and understand how and why you confuse love and money, why you have difficulty demanding what you deserve, and receive tools that are life changing.

This event will help you:

- Discover the real reason you cannot feel at ease with your money.
- Learn why you overspend and get the tools to change that habit.
- Understand why you under earn...and how to change that.

In 2007, Pegi experienced her own personal financial crisis that led her to discover how a person’s feelings about themselves can impact their financial choices.

Out of her journey, The Financial Whisperer® Coaching Series was born. To work with Pegi is to take a deep dive into one’s complicated backstory. Her uncanny ability to lightning-fast identify the core issue a person is struggling with can enable her clients to move forward where traditional therapists and coaches have failed.
